Something drew you to the college or university you chose.

Maybe, your mom or dad went there, or a brother or sister. Maybe the school offers an excellent program for the career you want to pursue. Maybe the school has an incredible sports tradition, or maybe it's where one of your closest friends is attending, too.

There may have been lots of reasons that influenced your selection, but you realize it's down to you, your dreams and your determination. Point your compass to the passions that drive you.

A GUIDE TO ACHIEVING YOUR DREAMS

The first semester of college can feel a bit overwhelming. You'll meet people from all walks of life, with values and beliefs that may not reflect yours. Professors will challenge your thinking. You may sense a new level of competition from your fellow classmates. And time management can be a serious challenge.

This is your time. How will you use it? Who will you share it with? What will you achieve with it?

You need to discover your gifts. Whether you realize it or not, you need to surround yourself with people who can help you understand what you can offer.

“I believe every human has a finite number of heartbeats. I don't intend to waste any of mine.”
—Neil Armstrong,
Purdue '55

DON'T RUSH INTO A BIG DECISION

You're going to meet lots of people in college. Classes, work-study, sports events, and living in the dorms all offer opportunities to make friends.

Another opportunity to consider is the fraternities on campus. The first few weeks of school are when many fraternities and sororities actively recruit members. It's a good time to learn if Greek life is a good fit for you. But don't feel rushed. Our fraternity, Phi Delta Theta, recruits year-round. We like to take our time in finding men who want to discover the greatness within themselves.

“Putting your values to work will strengthen you and what you stand for.”

You've hung around guys your entire life. Friends can impact you; friends can distract you. How do you know if a fraternity is right for you? How will you know if an organization like Phi Delta Theta will help you achieve your dreams?

We think it comes down to this: You need to stand for something.

Your values will likely grow and evolve throughout your college experience. And your values matter. Because every decision you make toward becoming the person you envision will be based on your values.

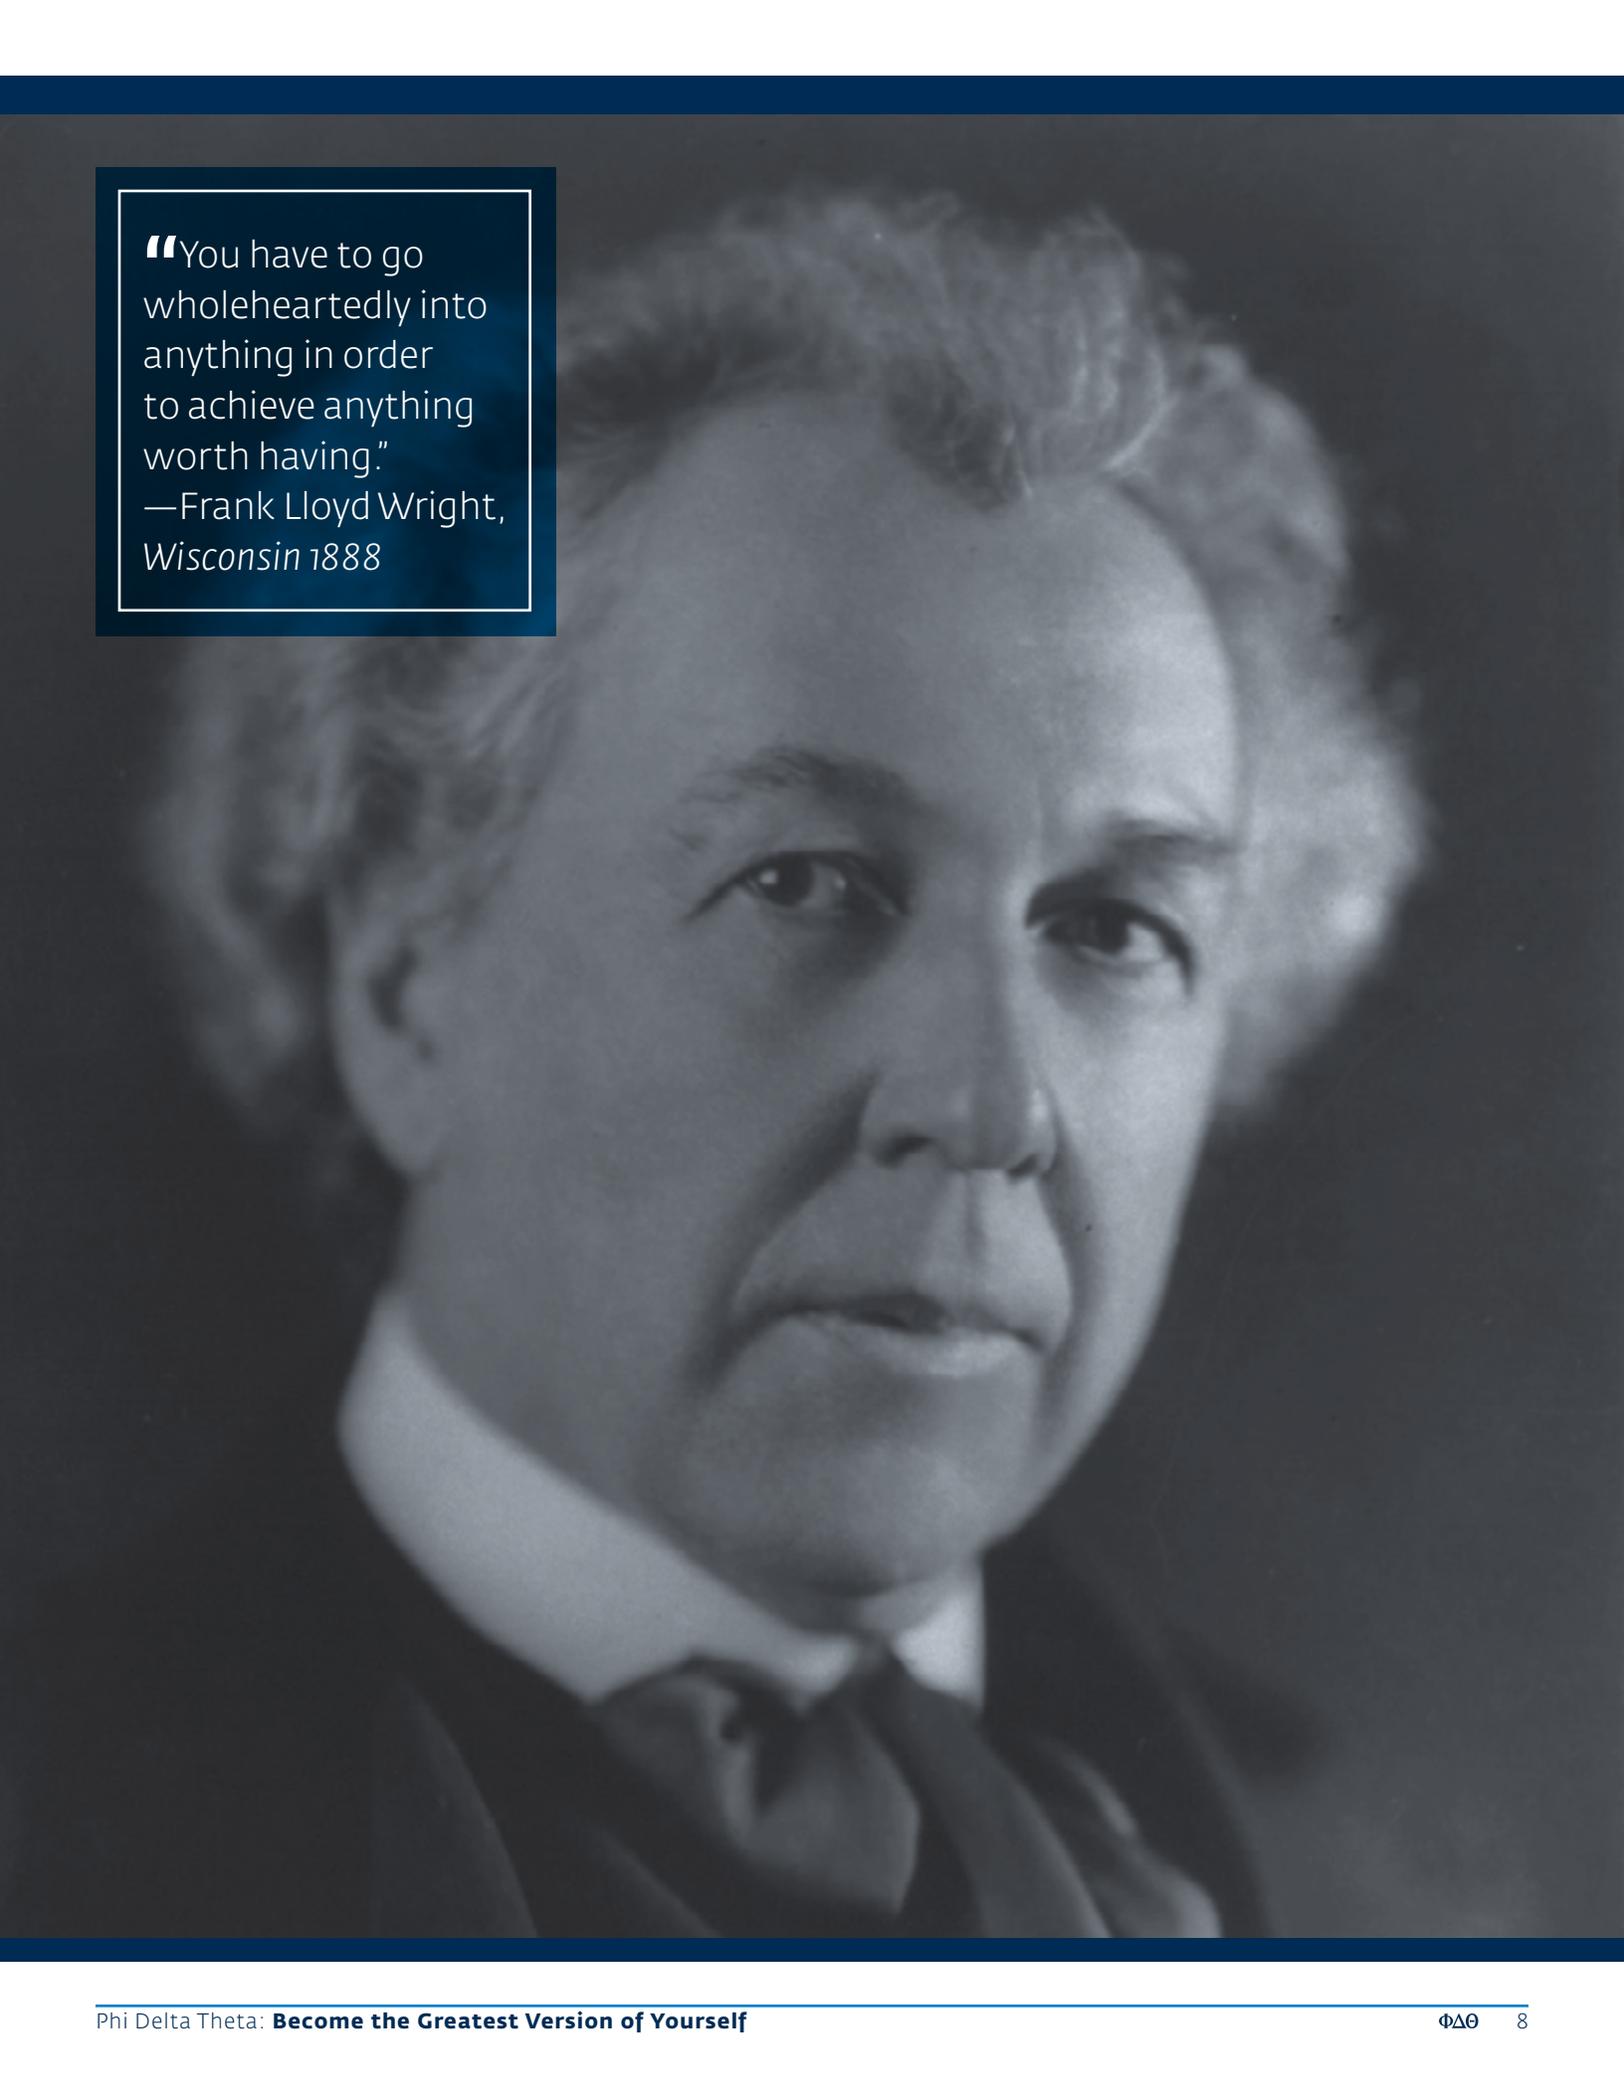

At this time in your life, you need room to test your values. Learn to understand and appreciate others whose values may be different than yours. Putting your values to work will strengthen you and what you stand for.

JUMP IN WITH BOTH FEET

When you start exploring different fraternities online, you'll find that Phi Delta Theta is a different breed of fraternity.

Our 13,000 undergraduate members joined us because they want to surround themselves with people of similar character who are determined to succeed. People who are smart, want to work hard, have fun, and have the guts to make tough decisions.

Like when we made the call to institute alcohol-free housing and ban hazing—years before it was popular to do so. Or when we were one of the first Greek organizations to eliminate any restriction to join based on race, color or creed.

Guys with guts make for the best of friends. Brothers for life.

REACH HIGHER

Job number one is to achieve academic excellence. Excellent grades, combined with internships and other college experiences, will lead to bigger and better career opportunities in the years ahead.

To support you, each Phi Delta Theta chapter encourages consistent and efficient study habits, study groups, and quiet study time. Our brothers are known for achieving among the highest GPAs on campus.

But we want you to reach higher than that.

Giving back is the DNA of Phi Delts. We've learned that the most successful people make a habit of serving their community and standing up for those who can't stand for themselves. Challenging yourself in small ways now will prepare you for the really big challenges that lie ahead.

It's in the spirit of fellow Phi Delts, Neil Armstrong, Frank Lloyd Wright, and Lou Gehrig to which Phi Delts aspire and serve with humility and grace.

WORK HARD. HAVE FUN.

College is not all books. Whatever you love to do, it's likely that your college offers the opportunity to explore it and share it with others.

"How you play and being open to trying new things is every bit as important as studying hard and getting good grades."

Phi Delt brothers are active in sports, in fun events involving other fraternities and sororities, and in participating in all aspects of college life. It's part of our equation to living well, and living by your values. How you play and being open to trying new things is every bit as important as studying hard and getting good grades.

PREPARE FOR GREATNESS

We believe that each of our members will discover his individual greatness. It may be discovered in ways such as...

- Φ Inventing a life-saving product
- Φ Directing a groundbreaking movie
- Φ Supporting a spouse who is fighting a life threatening disease
- Φ Putting your life on the line in service of your country or community
- Φ Helping a young person struggling at home and in school
- Φ Eschewing a job on Wall Street to start a poverty-fighting non-profit
- Φ Voting on a controversial bill that you know will jeopardize your chances of being re-elected

“We are a brotherhood of men who will always be there for you for when your moment of greatness comes.”

As a Phi Delt, we want to be prepared for those moments in life when the test of your character will be at its zenith. That’s why joining our fraternity is more than a four-year commitment.

We are a brotherhood of men who will always be there for you for when your moment of greatness comes.

PARENTS, GET INVOLVED

You want to see your son get great grades, graduate and get a good job.

We want to see your son become an incredible contributor to society. An ethical leader. An innovator. Someone who's active in building his community. A trusted, loving spouse. An awesome dad. A reliable friend. A good, all-around guy who's respected for his thoughtfulness and kindness. Someone who stands up for what he believes.

Joining our fraternity is not a light decision. We seek academic excellence, and a commitment of time and energy toward building our chapter and participating in community service. Your son also will be expected to financially contribute through membership dues, which goes toward the programs provided to your son through our local chapter and national organization.

“At Phi Delta Theta, we know that greatness lies in the flame that burns in your son.”

At Phi Delta Theta, we know that greatness lies in the flame that burns in your son. We will do everything in our power to fuel that fire and prepare him to take on the opportunities and challenges that lie before him with grit, grace and humility.
